

Save the Children,
London,
Head of Research (Philanthropy and Partnerships),
£42,000 - £47,000 Neg + pension

Save the Children is the world's independent children's charity. With programmes in 52 countries including the UK, we are improving the lives of millions of children across the globe.

Our Philanthropy & Partnerships Directorate was established in 2008 as part of a significant investment in fundraising from corporates, trusts and high net worth individuals. We have experienced significant income growth.

Our goals for the next 3 years are even more ambitious, we are looking for an experienced leader and prospect researcher to help us significantly widen our pool of prospects and professionalise how we engage with them. The role will proactively drive prospect pipelines with the fundraising teams and work closely with the Data team ensuring we are maximising existing opportunities.

Experience in the development sector is less important than a strong prospect development background and enthusiasm for a new challenge. We see you bringing experience in data mining and predictive modelling, understanding the initial motivators to give.

If you would like to get involved and create dramatic change for children it would be great to discuss further. In return we offer a sector leading salary, pension, development and work / life balance.

For more details and an informal discussion contact Quinton Seemann +44 207 012 6536 or qs@savethechildren.org.uk

Best Charity to Work for – Charity Times Awards 2009

Best Fundraising Charity to Work for – Institute of Fundraising Awards 2008